

This position contains the king and all nine possible queens of each colour, i.e. the original and eight promoted pawns. No queen is on the same row, column or diagonal as any piece of the opposite colour.

The illustrated position is the only possible chess position for which the description of the previous paragraph is true, excepting rotations and reflections of the chessboard, or swapping black and white.